Reach the top

Choose a career in recruitment

Does a fast-paced recruitment job with unlimited earning potential sound attractive to you?

Take control of your future.

Recruitment consultancy is a direct sales role: you sell clients to candidates, and vice versa.

It's the pinnacle of the sales market and no two days are ever the same.

You will effectively be running your own 'business within a business' from your desk.

RULE will explain all your options and guide you into an exciting role at your ideal recruitment employer.

A great recruiter can make £100k
in their first year

How to find the perfect candidate

Targeting the right people is essential

1. Headhunting

Approach someone who has the credentials to do the job you're recruiting for. With tools such as LinkedIn, this is becoming more widely used.

2. Advertising

A simple and effective way to entice talent. Most commonly activated through appropriate online job boards or national press.

3. Networking

Stay connected and ask people whether they know of a suitable candidate. A simple referral fee usually does the trick!

4. Database

All candidate details are stored – after all, a person might not be suitable for a job today, but maybe they will be later on.

place around 600,000 candidates
each year

Winning business

Working closely with clients is a key aspect of recruitment

The UK recruitment industry is worth £28.7bn per year

Do you have a winning mentality?

You'll be responsible for winning business – targeting companies who are hiring and who need your help to find the right candidates.

Generate leads, be ahead of the game. You'll increase your chances of success by doing some research. Ask candidates where they have been interviewed recently so that you know which companies are hiring.

Do you have a winning personality?

It is vital to build strong relationships with clients so that they come back to you next time they're hiring. Your social skills will help you bond, perhaps over a beer or at their favourite restaurant.

Win their trust and you can win their business.

Five reasons to love the challenge

Recruitment is tough, but it's worth it...

1. Earning potential

A good recruiter will earn £100k within three years of leaving university. A great one can do so in their first year. Top billers make £500k before they hit 30. We know, because we've placed them.

2. Career progression

You are in charge of how quickly you progress. If you hit your targets, you'll get promoted.

3. Amazing incentives

In recruitment, the incentives are unbeatable. Trips to Vegas, Miami, Ibiza, Rolex watches, Porsches, Michelin-starred lunches, cash prizes...

4. Industry exposure

Working with the world's most sought-after companies takes you to amazing places. Fancy weekly meetings at establishments such as Goldman Sachs?

5. Social buzz

Recruitment attracts energetic, sociable people. Spending your Thursday nights in a top London bar is another part of the job.

A top recruiter can reach
Director level within five years

Power your future

Rule will guide you into your ideal career
